

The Mystery of Miss Jane Marple

The only 'my-story' she could not solve herself.

By Ninja Bambi, Sept.2014

Miss Jane Marple is a detective created by popular crime-writer, Agatha Christie.

She appears in 12 of A-G-Ate-HER ChrisT-tie's cry-me novels.

~*~

Miss Jane Marple - J. Marple - Je m'appelle, Jane.

Je = I/eye/aye

m'appelle = me/myself call

Je suis, Jane Marple - I am (that I am)

Jesuis/Jesu(i)s/Jesu-is-IT

Je m'appelle, Jane - J'aime Mare-P-EL, Jane

J. Marr-P-Elle - Elle = she

~*~

ELLE|ELLE

a French tongue-pledged palindrome/PAL-IN-d-ROME

ELLE repeats in the MIRROR and hides within its-ELLE-f

THE masculine for-m: eL|Le THE (m)

Aye/Et la femme fatale detects with eyes to see through the looking glass

observes

The Mirror Crack'd

and by following the clues found all the spell-bindings, tight-lie tied so S/He cut the binding threads/3ds to let fall the veil of lies and found it to be a clear-cut-case of Murder With Mirrors.

A real whodunnit!

~*~

Miss 'je m'appelle, Jane' is herself a my-STER-y.

S/He sees with her ears and hears with her eyes.

A dear old soul, she lives in the Global Village of S'ain't MARE-y M/E-A.D.

Where doubtfully believing gossips run the pub and the village store and Corp-SEs fill the Lie-B-Ra-R-Eye S-Hell-Ve's Gal-law.

~*~

The day goes along quietly, as Miss Marple sits down to create, and reaching for her knitting,

S/He hears a knock at her cottage door...

"Miss Marple?"

"Ah, I've been expecting you. Do please call me, Jane."

"How d'you DOE, JANE."

"How d'you do. Please, do come in. Would you like some T-ea?"

"That's very kind of you, JANE. I DOEn't mind if I do!"