

One-Size-Fits-All

How does this freeing ourselves from this control system work?

I am thinking about this, daily, hourly almost.

How do we extract ourselves, wholly in peace, from the clutches of what is worse than a thousand-tentacled beast from the deepest, blackest, watery underworld that is Admiralty?

The answer is as many-faceted as those beastly tentacles.

Each one of us must do it for ourselves.

In our own way.

Step-by-step, moment-by-moment, according to that which we face, individually.

The only 'one-size-fits-all' is the Name Fraud Proof.

That's it.

What we do with that knowledge is uniquely our own responsibility and our own path.

Some of us feel insecure and tend to lean on others, almost incapable of self-propulsion.

Some of us are leaned-upon, equally almost incapable of propulsion with the additional 'weight' on our minds.

Some of us proceed alone, diligently, silently for the most part, plodding ever-onwards, deeply motivated and filled with pure intent to be free.

Some of us share our way, in equal measure, stepping in tandem with a fellow-warrior, in tune, in sync, as we share this journey, in harmony of will, mind and deed.

However it is , in this NOW moment, for each of us, that is ALL this is about: the NOW moment of our reality.

The next NOW moment can be radically altered, if we choose.

Therefore, all is perfection and fluid.

Always.

It bears remembering this important fact, of our NOW moments being fluid, as we notice those 'warrirors' who appear to be 'blazing a trail' filled with action, energy and enormous bravado, when we ourselves may be feeling somewhat unsure, stagnant or yet fearful in our NOW.

That trail-blazer may have had his or her stagnant or fearful days, though you may never have seen them, and in the end, they are only blazing the trail for themselves! We cannot walk their particular trail, so it is as much use to us as a chocolate teapot, isn't it!

Therefore, we need never feel threatened at what appears to be others' progress where we may see none of our own, or when we feel secretly elated at others' apparent lapse in progress.

We need to remember that it is our greedy-for-drama-ego-program which is running in the left-brain, with it's various methods of 'sticking spanners in the wheels' of any attempt to break out of this slave mould, such as

"Give Me Proof First!"

or "It's Just Theory."

or "Oh, Look, So And So Aint So Slick After All."

or "But I Can't Understand, It's Not Easy For Me!".

This kind of chatter is typical. It happens, it's human, we have all seen it, or thought it, some time or another.

The point is this, and it so simple:

The real and only battle is inside YOU, ME, HIM, HER, SELF!

It cannot be anywhere but INSIDE.

Deal with that fact, act upon that truth, and change the whole world of YOU, ME, HIM, HER, SELF!

Intend it so!
